

Adahooniigii

Newspapers.

Recurso Continuado

Appearing between 1943 and 1957, Adahooniigii was something of a predecessor to later publication, the Navajo Times. Written predominantly in the Navajo language (Diné bizaad) and published monthly, the publication was produced by the Navajo Agency of the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA) and distributed to the residents of the Window Rock reservation in Arizona. With relatively few publications (other than religious texts) written in the language up to this point, the paper is often credited with contributing to the standardisation of Navajo orthography. From 1947 onwards, articles began to be published bilingually. Notable editors include Robert W. Young and William Morgan, Sr, both of whom were known for The Navajo Language, a major Navajo dictionary also published in 1943. Towards the end of its run, the government's Indian Termination Policy would result in the withdrawal of BIA funds and the eventual closure of Adahooniigii

<https://rebiunoda.pro.baratznet.cloud:38443/OpacDiscovery/public/catalog/detail/b2FpOmNlbgVicmF0aW9uOmVzLmJhemF0ei5yZW4vMjA3ODQ1MjM>

Título: Adahooniigii

Editorial: August 1943-January 1954 Window Rock, Arizona [United States Indian School] 1943-1957 February 1954-May/June 1957 Phoenix, Arizona Bureau of Indian Affairs, Window Rock Area, at the Phoenix Indian School

Descripción física: 1 online resource illustrations

Periodicidad actual: Bimonthly June/July 1956-May/June 1957

Periodicidad anterior: Monthly August 1943-May 1956

Nota general: "The Navaho language monthly." Some issues missing

Numeración: Suspended Nov. 1944?-Oct. 1946

Lengua: Text in Navajo language and English

Materia: Navajo Indians- Newspapers Indians of North America- Arizona- Newspapers Indians of North America. Navajo Indians.

Materia Geográfica: Phoenix (Ariz.)- Newspapers Maricopa County (Ariz.)- Newspapers Chinle (Ariz.)- Newspapers Arizona Arizona- Maricopa County. Arizona- Phoenix

Entidades: Phoenix Indian School

Enlace a formato físico adicional: 2768-7279

- Gran Vía, 59 28013 Madrid
- (+34) 91 456 03 60
- informa@baratz.es