Analítica

The crime of female kidnapping consists in the empowerment of the woman herself with sexual purposes. The crime can be initially ranked equally with rape and, the perpetrator should be punished likewise. Nevertheless, since the union between a woman and someone disliked by her parents or family group can be penalized, a woman entering into a consenting bond with her kidnapper can be the person who really suffers the consequences of such criminal action. This essay studies the laws concerning this kind of crime in the Aragonese medieval law codes, both in the local law codes of de frontier region and the territorial law codes enforced after 1247, the year the Council (cortes) is held in Huesca
