The historical roots of the Cuban Revolution are based on Martí's thoughts. Educators have the honorable task of preparing future generations through an education and culture that allow reaching high goals for the construction of socialist society, today more than ever it is required to instill in young people the doctrines of the teacher. The present investigation: "Honor, honor "night of terror in Bayamo. Experience of an educational project, based on one of Martí's thoughts, and raises the link of the apostle's phrases with the rich history of the town and how the research and teaching-learning process instills in young people the need to delve into history. The objective lies in the proposal of a system of activities that contributes to the political-ideological preparation and encourages, through knowledge of the history of the town, patriotism among young people
