Analítica

The objective of this study is to analyze the intellectual biography of the Chilean Positivist Valentín Letelier, who, from 1870 to 1919, produced a prolific body of work ranging from concerns about the administrative problems of the State to theoretical questions regarding the development of the Human Sciences. Our hypothesis is that Letelier, inspired by the Positivism of Comte, Spencer y Mill, reflected deeply, through an inductive method, in the hopes of transforming the social knowledge of the formal Human Sciences and thus elevate society and its (social, political, and juridical) relations to a "scientific" or "positivist" level. This perspective allows us to observe the disciplinary and scientific evolution of this body of knowledge and understand how Positivism came to replace Enlightenment thinking on the academic and intellectual stage in Latin America in the second half of the 19th century
