Analítica

The following article is descriptive and aims to analyze the vinculated operations and the economic and financial profitability of the company A. Hartrodt. Nowadays, the companies are constantly adapting to the diverse business necessities, which is why they develop key strategies to expand and increase its profits. In this way, there are business groups that have emerged as linked companies and subsidiaries in different markets around the world. The approach that was used is quantitative, the design and method used were descriptive. It should be noted that the balances of the financial statements of the three years analyzed were used for the compilation of data; and the method of data analysis was the application of profitability ratios. The results indicate that the linked operations have incidences in the company due to the fact that allows greater fluidity in the process of the operations and optimizes the resources. However, having so much facility to execute their transactions may drift in the omission of an in-depth analysis that allows to identify if these kind of operations are effectively profitable or not
