Analítica

Based on the question of whether popular and group actions are effective in protecting the environment in the metropolitan area of Bucaramanga, a study of the rulings was made between 2005 and 2009. In the investigation we determine the rights violated, the percentage of favorable judgments and verification, fulfilling the objectives. The study used primary sources by going to court offices and secondary sources in the literature on the subject, returning to the origin of these actions, then going by a comparison between them and concluding that they are effective but compliance with court orders is limited
