text (article)

Analítica

This article tries to outline the characteristics of the recent process of growth of an intermediate city of the Argentina Republic, realizing the most significant transformations that occurred in the urban expansion of particle board The article refers specifically to the areas of expansion of the city, because these are in the areas of stronger spatial dynamics, especially from the ' 90s. These areas of expansion, by the availability of data, are directly related to the various components of the chipboard
