Analítica

This work aimed to design a set of maps showing the tourist attractions of the Mindo parish, Ecuador, which are constituted in support resources to generate a positive impact on the increase of tourist activities of the destination. Methodologically it was addressed as field descriptive research, as the data were collected directly in the study area. Several tours were made that allowed to identify the tourist routes present in the aforementioned parish, as well as the resources and tourist attractions present; from this information were applied tools of geographical information systems that facilitated the elaboration of four maps with the tourist routes of the aforementioned parish
