Knowing, teaching and educating do not mean the same thing. To teach, in addition to knowing, we have to get the student to do things so that he gets to know and act. To educate we have to go one step further, because there are teachings that do not educate: we have to value each medium that we use as educational and adjust it to the characteristics inherent in the meaning of educating. The objective of knowing is to get to know, the objective of teaching is to make that the educatee knows and acts. The objective of educating is to get the educatee to be able to decide and carry out their projects and become an agent, actor and author, of those projects. This article looks for the formation of criteria about the meaning of "education" and the importance of Pedagogy for the construction of educational fields. Knowledge of education makes it possible the creation of educational fields by means of cultural areas. The meaning of education is the conjunction of pedagogical character and sense. The character determines the meaning, the sense gives it quality
