Analítica

We present an investigation, based on the creation and development of a learning process among students in Secondary Education first, that some of the four parameters of the sound, and the pursuit of musical resources and expressive, which converge composition, performance and body language. From the methodological point of view, we are faced with an empirical (experimental), based on the collection of data in an educational reality, aimed at improving teaching practice. The results in this research, are obtained after statistical analysis of the data obtained on the level of inventiveness and communication, to check if there are significant differences in the creative development of students in 1st ESO, after the use of two models of teaching different (traditional model and creative model)
