Analítica

This article proposes a multi-situated genealogy of dissident feminist Afro-diasporic articulations and discourses through a historical analysis that positions the political, epistemic and methodological relevance of these political processes as fundamental. It is exposed as a paradigm of feminist Afro-diasporic articulations in which my intellectual and activist work is situated, and which is part of a dissident feminist Afro-diasporic epistemology, positioning itself as a alternative political strategy against anti-Black deterritorialization narratives as well as hegemonic feminist interventions
