Analítica

The new Chilean bankruptcy law, No. 20.720, incorporates the figure of bankruptcy arbitration as a channel for resolving disputes that arise during the processing of insolvency proceedings, both liquidation and reorganization. It is a novel tool, both in Chile and for comparative law, whose regulation raises various questions that the law does not re-solve, what has resulted in the null application of the arbitral institute in this area. This work addresses these problems and offers some answers
