Analítica

This article presents the results obtained in the research project titled "Y encima mujer" which aimed to know the diversity of situations of homeless women. It analyses the exclusionary factors that lead and maintain them in this situation and provides useful conclusions to improve the intervention strategies and resources currently existing with which this specific problem is tackled. To this end, it presents the results obtained in four semi-structured interviews with women users of a mixed emergency resource, located in the Laguna neighbourhood, giving an account of the reality in which they live. It also highlights the change in the profile of homeless people and the lack of adaptation of resources to this new circumstance
