Analítica

The research proposes an interpretation of the liberal revolution of the Mezzogiorno as the central stage of a long conflict within the kingdom and, at the same time, as part of the events that characterized Europe and Italy. If on the one hand the crisis of 1820 marks the end point of the participation of the southern kingdom in the wars of the revolution, the consulate and the empire, on the other hand the constitutional revolution can be interpreted as the main momento of modernization of the kingdom and the most important political negotiation between the liberal-constitutional movement and the Bourbon monarchy
