Analítica

This study aims to determine the characteristics and number of retracted biomedical publications on COVID-19 using PubMed and Retraction Watch databases to determine authors, titles, journals, publication dates, retraction dates, and reasons for retraction. The COVID-19 literature reaches more than 280,000 articles, of which 63 have been retracted. Quick editorial processes are observed for both publication and retraction. Twenty-five articles do not provide the reason for retraction. Reasons given include duplicate publications, plagiarism, lack of IRB approval, and data and methodology problems
