Analítica

The present article analyzes a profound significance but rarely known historical event: The first diplomatic mission of the Emperor Philip II sending to China. We can approach and understand the decision-making mechanism of the Spanish government to complete such diplomatic missions in sixteenth century. In addition, Philip II once wrote to the Chinese emperor one letter, through which we can not only know the Spanish monarchs familiarity and relevant knowledge of China, but also can observe the methods and tactics that Philip II used in his attempt to establish diplomatic relations with that Empire
