Analítica

The jurisprudential precedent in Ecuadorian law must be analyzed from its scope of application in the judgments of the Constitutional Cost. Therefore, the objective will be to analyze the illegitimate distances between the precedents issued by this high Court. The right to legal security is also analyzed from a jurisprudential and normative perspective, since it can be violated by the unjustified deviation that the Court has sometimes made of its own rulings; without this action being duly motivated, and without manifestly substantiating its change of argument. This unjustified distance causes that there is no certainty of the criteria that the constitutional forum will apply in its decisions, which generates distrust in the constitutional justice system
