Analítica

The analysis of adoption as a guarantor process of the Constitutional Right of the child and adolescent to belong to a family and ensure the fulfillment of their rights established in the Ecuadorian Constitution; However, the non-existence of the legal exceptionality of the age limit within the adoption process when there is an emotional bond violates the constitutional right to have a family. Considering these considerations, the objective of this article is to analyze the adoption in Ecuador against the exceptional age among the actors as a guarantee to have a family when there is an emotional bond. For this, a legal methodology based on the qualitative approach was used, as well as the historical, inductive-deductive, analytical-synthetic historical methods. The main contribution of the research is the need to reform article 159, numeral 5 of the Code of Children and Adolescents (CNA)
