Analítica

The objective of this research is to analyze the tax collection in fiscal period 2018 in Ecuador. The statistical analysis of the SRI process was taken as a basis for some parameters such as: Value Added Tax, Income Tax, Foreign Currency Exit Tax and Special Consumption Tax, among others. The methodology used is the exploratory method with a quantitative and qualitative approach since data is studied as well as the collection in the main cities. The results obtained are that in the year 2018 there was an increase of 10.7% in the gross tax collection compared to the previous year and it is concluded that the effective tax administration met the proposed goal that is the increase of tax revenues for the country
