Analítica

The "que si" Spanish marker is examined in this preliminary study. The analysis was obtained from eighty-three occurrences found in the Sociolinguistic Corpus of Mérida (Corpus Sociolingüístico de Mérida-CSM). The marker is used orally for enumerative purposes to specify and keep textual reference. The study of this marker is important because it helps to describe oral variations from Spanish, especially from the Spanish variety of Mérida region in Venezuela. The analysis focuses on the relation of this marker with textual referents. Likewise, it considers standard taxonomies of discourse markers. Further research on this discourse marker is required for better description
