Analítica

The adoption by same-sex couples, although it is a controversial issue in the Ecuadorian legal system, should be analyzed as clearly as possible, to the extent that constitutional and legal mandates recognize marriages and de facto unions between Same sex and gender couples. In this way, it is proposed as an objective to analyze the importance that the family has as a fundamental nucleus of society in its different forms and the best interest of the minor in the face of homoparental adoptions from the national and international position regarding the subject. It is therefore a qualitative investigation that contextualized in a synthetic-analytical and inductive-deductive perspective allows finalizing the inconsistency of the current situation of homoparental adoption in Ecuador against the right to equality before the law and not being subject to No form of discrimination
