Analítica

The state of the art about the archaeological remains and sites ascribed to the Roman and "Castreña" Era, included in the geographic area between the Estaca de Bares cape and the estuary of Ribadeo, in the western part of the Cantabrian Sea, is presented. In this area there are numerous sites attached to this temporary space, among which we can highlight about fifty hill-forts, a dozen open settlements, commonly referred as villae, as well as some gold mines, a few craft facilities, and various findings without a definite archeological context. The historiographic study is completed with the analysis of a series of archaeological remains that has been carried out in the Museum of Prehistory and Archeology of Vilalba
