Analítica

Background: The vertiginous changes that contemporary society is experiencing transform and establish new dynamics and forms of relationship and exchange built among members of society. Objective: To analyze, through the jargon of adolescents, the changes that have currently taken place at this level. Method: Qualitative research with a grounded theory design. 4 discussion groups were conducted with adolescents between 13 and 18 years of age, with whom three categories of analysis were approached: sexuality, law, and social, obtaining several slang terms divided into subcategories. Results: There was evidence of forms of naming the body influenced by other languages; couple modalities characterized by the lack of choice and the immediacy of bonds; the disappearance of dissymmetry in the relationship to authority and the social sphere, relationships marked by terms proper to the world of social networks and the digitalization of culture. Discussion: The jargon of adolescents speaks of a social bond that, at present, fragilely regulates the pacts and exchanges between the speaking subjects, which produces an increase in violence as a characteristic of the relationship with the other
