Analítica

The concept of competence is often used in the teaching of languages, both native and foreign. It seeks to organically develop four basic linguistic skills: speaking, writing, listening and reading. The English language is a lingua franca and its domain is a skill of the first order. To that end, a bibliographic review was carried out which makes references about the competences in the English language (definition, communicative competence, learning of writing, among others) and some results of research related to the subject
