Analítica

In this article I reflect on the construction of more-than-human existential pacts, or ways of cohabiting, to face the climatic collapse and mass extinction that characterize our time. From an essayistic approach, the reflections focus on the challenges that the human era imposes to postpone the end of the world. To this purpose, I put into dialogue emerging concepts - terms that, in my view, make up a grammar of the Anthropocene - and fragments of my childhood memories in the Amazon riverside communities of Santarém, west of Pará state, Brazil
