Analítica

On December 9, 1907, in La Nación of Buenos Aires, Unamuno published the short es-say "Mi religión", in which he tried to answer the incessant question about his own creed, as well as describe his "spiritual character". Unamuno's response is sober: "Seek the truth in life and life in the truth." By answering so categorically, he affirms that he did not seek "but to better raise the meaning of such a question." In addition to presenting the rest of Unamuno's response, we will elaborate on the relationship between truth and life and its central importance within the phenomenon and religious feeling that Unamuno intends, at least, to enunciate and distinguish. We will note that, for Unamuno, the theme of "truth and life" transcends philosophy, but also theology, which, in his opinion, is nothing more than a philosophical rationalization of the mystery that is our existence
