

Del abordaje teórico al análisis empírico: un archivo de la represión en Rawson, Chubut [

Analítica

This work tries to give account of one of the problematic archives, especially ending on the graphic historical and political repercussions of the finding and opening of sensitive files. Information and discussion - theoretical, methodological, and even epistemological - motivated the analysis and revision of this occurrence from the presentation of a repressive file of the dictatorship in Rawson, Chubut, the 24 of March, 2004. Following Derrida, we can say that all these files are established, conservative, revolutionary and traditional (Derrida, 1994: 6), but we, the ones who have worked with them, are the ones who can make sense of them, knowing that they are a privileged means for the strained analysis of differing remembrances. Now, does a democratized, repressive file, allow us to break with legacy and commitment? This is one of the challenges which we, who looked to contribute to the constitution of an historical truth, enable the western debate of Human Rights to be globalized
