

Exemption method and credit method : the application of Article 23 of the OECD model

Kofler, Georg (1977-), editor

Monografía

This book aims to provide an in-depth analysis of any and all current issues related to the application of Art 23A and 23B of the OECD Model

<https://rebiunoda.pro.baratznet.cloud:28443/OpacDiscovery/public/catalog/detail/b2FpOmNlbnGVcmF0aW9uOmVzLmJhcmF0ei5yZW4vMzYxNzI5MzU>

Título: Exemption method and credit method the application of Article 23 of the OECD model

Edición: 1st ed

Editorial: Amsterdam IBFD Publications USA, Incorporated 2022 2022

Descripción física: 1 online resource (396 pages)

Mención de serie: WU - Tax Law and Policy v.24

Contenido: Cover -- Title -- Copyright -- Preface -- Chapter1: Method Article and Unilateral Measures to Avoid Double Taxation -- 1.1. Introduction -- 1.2. Avoidance of double taxation through unilateral relief -- 1.2.1. Methods of unilateral relief -- 1.2.2. History of unilateral relief -- 1.2.2.1. Exemption -- 1.2.2.2. Credit -- 1.2.3. When does unilateral relief apply? -- 1.3. Avoidance of double taxation through treaties -- 1.3.1. The effect of distributive rules -- 1.3.2. Application and effect of the method article -- 1.3.2.1. Avoidance of residual double taxation -- 1.3.2.2. Articles23A and 23B -- 1.4. Comparison between unilateral relief and treaty relief -- 1.4.1. Key differences between unilateral measures and the method article -- 1.4.1.1. Advantages of unilateral relief -- 1.4.1.2. Advantages of treaty relief -- 1.5. Are tax treaties the most effective means of eliminating double taxation? -- 1.6. Conclusion -- Chapter 2: Method Article and Allocation Conflicts -- 2.1. Introduction -- 2.2. The issue of income allocation conflicts -- 2.2.1. The origin -- 2.2.2. The triggers -- 2.3. The application of tax conventions in income allocation conflicts cases: The resident state facet -- 2.4. The application of article23 to income allocation conflicts -- 2.4.1. Economic double taxation and juridical double taxation: Is there a boundary? -- 2.4.2. Principles proposed by the Partnership Report -- 2.4.3. Treatment according to the OECD Model (2017) and the UN Model (2017) -- 2.5. Conclusion -- Chapter 3: Conflicts of Qualification under Articles23A(1) and 23B(1) -- 3.1. Introduction -- 3.2. Conflicts of qualification and articles23A and 23B -- 3.2.1. The key phrase of paragraph 1 of articles23A and 23B -- 3.2.2. Conflicts of qualification: A brief overview -- 3.2.3. Conflicts of qualification: A fine line 3.3. The impact of the 2017 changes to the OECD and UN Models -- 3.3.2. Expanding source state taxation rights -- 3.3.1. Preventing non-taxation under the model -- 3.3.3. Addressing hybrid entities and conflicts of qualification -- 3.2.4.

A longstanding and ongoing debate -- 3.4. The search for solutions to conflicts of qualification -- 3.4.1. Substantive solutions -- 3.4.2. Interpretive solutions -- 3.4.3. Procedural solutions -- 3.5. Conclusion -- Chapter4: Conflicts of Qualification under Article23A(4) -- 4.1. Article23A(4) of the OECD Model: A finished discussion? -- 4.2. Conflicts of qualification under article23A(1) of the OECD Model -- 4.2.1. The "new approach" according to the OECD -- 4.2.2. Criticism of the "new approach" -- 4.3. Conflicts of qualification under article23A(4) of the OECD Model -- 4.3.1. Qualification conflicts covered by article23A(4) -- 4.3.2. Criticism of article23A(4) -- 4.3.3. Procedural aspects of article23A(4) -- 4.4. The complexity behind the phrase, "the other contracting state applies" -- 4.5. Reception of article23A(4) of the OECD Model -- 4.5.1. Article23A(4) of the OECD Model in tax treaties -- 4.5.2. Article23A(4) of the OECD Model in the context of the BEPS Project -- 4.5.3. Article23A(4) of the UN Model -- 4.6. Concluding remarks -- Chapter5: Notion of "Tax" under the Credit Method -- 5.1. Introduction -- 5.2. Characteristics of tax for claiming credit under article23B -- 5.2.1. Relation of article23B to article2 -- 5.2.2. Compulsory payment to claim credit -- 5.2.3. Unrequited payment to claim credit -- 5.2.4. Effective payment to claim credit -- 5.2.5. Undisputed payment to claim credit -- 5.3. Tax credit problems -- 5.3.1. Credit in the case of the taxpayer neglecting to seek a refund -- 5.3.2. Credit in the case of incorrect assessment in the source state 5.3.3. Credit in the case of choices offered under the domestic law of the source state -- 5.3.4. Credit in the case of prohibitions in the statute of limitations of the residence state -- 5.4. Conclusion -- Chapter6: Credit Method and Maximum Tax Credit -- 6.1. How much credit is the residence state obliged to give under tax treaties? -- 6.2. Limitation of foreign tax credit in treaty history: The origins of foreign tax credit limitations -- 6.2.1. Domestic US tax legislation and foreign tax credit -- 6.2.2. League of nations -- 6.2.3. OEEC/OECD Model -- 6.3. Prerequisites for the foreign tax credit under article23B of the OECD Model -- 6.3.1. Resident person -- 6.3.2. Income derived and capital owned -- 6.3.3. "May be taxed" in the source state as a reference to open distributive rules -- 6.3.3.1. Non-exclusive taxing right of the source state -- 6.3.3.2. Exclusive taxing right of the residence state or source state -- 6.4. Maximum tax credit -- 6.4.1. Double limitation of residence state's obligation to give credit: Tax paid and maximum deduction -- 6.4.2. Limitation by maximum deduction -- 6.4.2.1. Rule and general mode of operation: The formula and its assumptions -- 6.4.2.2. Residence state tax on total income -- 6.4.2.3. Part of the income or capital tax that is attributable to the income or capital that "may be taxed" in the other state -- 6.4.2.3.1. Residence state tax on income received or capital owned at source -- 6.4.2.3.2. Determination of income that may be taxed at source -- 6.4.2.4. Income aggregation for the calculation of the maximum deduction: "Overall", "per country" or "per item" -approach? -- 6.4.2.4.1. The conceptual differences and their relevance for the -maximum deduction -- 6.4.2.4.2. Article23B(1) of the OECD Model: Implicit per-country -approach and its implications 6.4.2.4.3. Per-item approach required under article23A(2) of the OECD Model? -- 6.5. Excess foreign tax credit: Carry-forward of foreign tax credit obligatory under treaty law? -- 6.5.1. Outline of the problem arising from excess foreign credits -- 6.5.2. Article23B(1) or article23A(2) of the OECD Model as legal basis for a carry-forward of foreign tax credit? -- 6.6. Conclusion -- Chapter 7: Credit Method and Different Taxes on Income and on Capital -- 7.1. The problem to be solved -- 7.2. Current state of the debate -- 7.2.1. Multiple taxes in the source or in the residence state -- 7.2.2. Operation of the credit when there are multiple taxes in the residence state: Prioritization of specific taxes? -- 7.3. Taxes on income versus taxes on capital -- 7.3.1. The interpretation of article23B(1) of the OECD Model -- 7.3.2. How to distinguish between "taxes on income" and "taxes on capital" -- 7.4. The application of the credit method to multiple taxes -- 7.4.1. The application of the credit method to multiple taxes: Same items of income -- 7.4.2. The application of the credit method to multiple taxes: Different items of income -- 7.5. Conclusion -- Chapter 8: Tax Sparing -- 8.1. Introduction to tax sparing: Main features and source of issues -- 8.2. Over 60 years of debates on tax sparing -- 8.2.1. From 1957 to the beginning of the 21st century: Old arguments to a renewed debate -- 8.2.2. 1998: The focus on abuse -- 8.2.3. New ideas for a new century -- 8.3. Embracing the new reality: Tax sparing in the BEPS aftermath -- 8.3.1. Not an aid tool, but a sovereignty tool -- 8.3.2. Are studies on the impact of tax treaties and tax incentives on FDI accurate? -- 8.3.3. A fairer approach regarding source countries' sovereignty -- 8.3.4. Hidden tax protectionism vs. international tax fairness -- 8.4. The future of tax sparing under the GloBE proposal 8.4.1. Relevant premises of the BEPS Project -- 8.4.2. The GloBE proposal under Pillar Two: An anti-BEPS measure? -- 8.4.3. GloBE and jurisdiction not to tax: A sovereignty issue -- 8.4.4. The impact on tax sparing -- 8.4.5. Hidden tax protectionism and other incompatibilities -- 8.4.6. (How) can GloBE be made compatible with tax sparing? -- 8.5. Conclusion -- Chapter9: Exemption Method with Proviso Safeguarding Progression -- 9.1. Introduction -- 9.2. Aim of the proviso safeguarding progression -- 9.3. Application and functioning of the proviso safeguarding progression -- 9.4. History -- 9.4.1. Drafts of models from the League of Nations -- 9.4.2. The first OECD Model with the exemption method with safeguarding progression (1963) -- 9.4.3. The OECD Model (1977):

Development into a standalone paragraph in article 23 -- 9.5. Constitutive or declarative nature of the proviso safeguarding progression in a tax treaty -- 9.5.1. The common effect of the proviso safeguarding progression -- 9.5.2. Tax treaty with a limited proviso safeguarding progression -- 9.5.3. Tax treaty with a proviso safeguarding progression based on the OECD Model (1963) or earlier -- 9.5.4. Conclusion -- 9.6. Source state: Permitted or prohibited to apply proviso safeguarding progression? -- 9.6.1. The proviso safeguarding progression in the source state in the context of the tax treaty -- 9.6.2. The proviso safeguarding progression in the source state in the light of the OECD Commentary -- 9.6.3. The proviso safeguarding progression in the source state according to the literature and case law -- 9.6.4. Conclusion -- 9.7. Limits by tax treaty law for the application of a domestic proviso safeguarding progression -- 9.7.1. Scope -- 9.7.2. Legal consequences -- 9.7.2.1. Tax rate versus amount of tax -- 9.7.2.2. Negative proviso safeguarding progression 9.7.2.3. Taking into account the "exempt income or capital"

ISBN: 9789087228002 electronic bk.) 9789087227999

Autores: Kofler, Georg ( 1977-), editor

Enlace a formato físico adicional: Print version Exemption Method and Credit Method Amsterdam : IBFD Publications USA, Incorporated, c2022 9789087227999

Punto acceso adicional serie-Título: WU Institute for Austrian and International Tax Law European and international tax law and policy series v. 24

---

Baratz Innovación Documental

- Gran Vía, 59 28013 Madrid
- (+34) 91 456 03 60
- informa@baratz.es