Monografía

There are three things no one can prepare you for when your daughter is murdered: you are haunted by her memory day and night; even close friends can't understand what you are going through; only in a group with mothers of other victims can you find real comfort. But as the bereaved parents gather to offer support in the wake of another killing, a crack appears in the group that threatens to rock their lives all over again. Welcome to the club no one wants to join
