"Lucinda Stafford is uniquely unqualified to serve as governess for the children of a handsome inventor. But, she's determined to prove to her family she's not a fragile, pampered heiress who can't take care of herself. She didn't plan to be attracted to the man who makes her furious one moment and whimper with desire the next. When danger threatens, can she save two innocent children from a terrifying nightmare? Grayson Thorne has only weeks to prove his geothermal plant can generate electricity, or he'll lose much needed funding. He's desperate to hire a new governess, but shocked when his housekeeper returns home with a beautiful, educated female who awakens long dormant desires. She's the perfect choice, if he can manage to keep his hunger for her kisses and fantasies of taking her to his bed under control. An ancient Icelandic curse hides in the hills, haunting the residents of Thornehus. Grayson and Lucinda may be swept away by passion, but they must face an unspeakable horror that threatens them all"--Cover, page 4
