"With the signing of the political agreement on a national unity government today, the next step in Libya's transition will be to ensure that its new Constitution fully conforms to international rule of law and human rights standards, the ICJ said today. The statement came as the ICJ released its new report The Draft Libyan Constitution: Procedural Deficiencies, Substantive Flaws. In the report, the ICJ calls on the Libyan Constitution Drafting Assembly (CDA) to substantially revise the Draft Constitution published in October with a view to ensuring its full compliance with Libya's obligations under international human rights law and international standards. Libyan authorities, including the CDA, should also put in place effective mechanisms to ensure that the drafting process is inclusive, participatory, and fully reflects the views of a broad range of stakeholders, including civil society and minority groups. The report concludes that the Draft Constitution, in many key respects, does not conform to Libya's obligations under international human rights law or to international rule of law standards."--
